Sennhütte in Winter: A Paradise in the Alps

The Sennhütte, renowned for its excellent location and cozy atmosphere, transforms into a true winter paradise during the colder months. Nestled in the picturesque mountain landscape of the Austrian Alps, this alpine hut offers an unparalleled winter experience.

After a long day on the slopes around the Arlberg, a visit to the Sennhütte is not just a pleasure but an absolute must. Guests can look forward to sensational food, homemade schnapps, breathtaking alpine panoramas, and atmospheric live music that make their stay unforgettable. Several times a week, live bands ensure a lively atmosphere, inviting guests to dance and enjoy the night. A day at the Sennhütte is sure to be a highlight of any winter vacation.

Gourmet Delights at the Highest Level

The Sennhütte offers an impressive variety of Tyrolean dishes and beverages, carefully selected and prepared with great passion. The menu features hearty daily specials alongside traditional Tyrolean delicacies, all lovingly crafted by Chef Josef, who brings years of experience to the table. A standout is the homemade apple mint juice, made fresh in the summer from the hut's own gardens. The combination of culinary delights and regional drinks guarantees a unique taste experience, perfectly complementing the overall stay.

Relaxation in the Sun

The Sennhütte is not only a culinary haven but also an ideal retreat for relaxation. The hut is accessible via various routes, so visitors don't necessarily have to take the slopes to reach it. Whether on foot, with snowshoes, or on skis, the path to the Sennhütte leads through a stunning winter landscape, offering numerous opportunities for active recreation. The sunny terrace invites guests to soak up the winter sun and enjoy a warm drink while taking in the surrounding mountain scenery to the fullest.
